

Rutland Historical Society Quarterly

Volume 34 No.2

Early Years of Company C368th Engineer Battalion--Army Reserve in Rutland, Vermont

This issue begins with the Rutland Army Reserve taking off for Kuwait in 2003. It then quickly gives the history of Company C. It begins with a description of how the unit moved to Rutland in 1968, and gives good information about the soldiers that were in the reserve. It also has historical photographs of the machinery used in the Army in the 1970s. Community service work and military training were both a big part of this reserve unit.