

July, 1973. This quarterly details the fire at the five-story Company Store that lasted an entire hour after being reported. The store was deemed essential, so the manager immediately set up a temporary store. It also discusses the difficulty in moving the Samuel Curtis House, which had to be separated into three sections and moved to the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Grove. The quarterly includes a couple of book reviews one by Abby Maria Hemenway titled “ Abby Hemenway’s Vermont. Unique Portrait of a State” and the other by Henry S. Olcott titled “People from the Other World”
