SAINT PETER CHURCH
134 CONVENT AVENUE
RUTLAND, VERMONT 05701

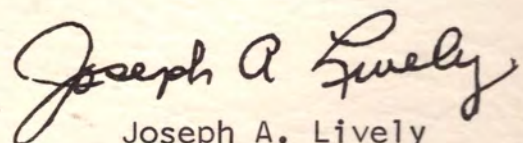

The "Decree on the Ministry and Life of Priests" given to us by the Second Vatican Council states, "The office of Pastor...is (also) properly extended to the formation of a genuine Christian Community." Line 80. Modern society makes this a difficult challenge with so much of our technology and human endeavors having a great depersonalizing influence on our lives.

The history of Saint Peter's Parish which we are pleased to present to you reflects that the faith community that was built over the years was achieved by a people who were a "People of God", and who knew and cared for each other and who worked hard and sacrificed to make it the parish that it was.

We must constantly strive to know and care for each other. It is our sincere hope that incorporating the pictures of members of our present parish family will help us to build and deepen that community that Vatican II urges us to build.

The history of the parish was molded, not only by joyous events but by sufferings and hardships as well. We are indeed aware that this same process is taking place even in our own day. It is truly our hope, however, that this Directory and History of our parish will bring Peace, Joy, and Hope to everyone of us and that our endeavors will encourage us to persevere.

With heartfelt gratitude to all the parishioners I ask God to bless each of you in abundance.

CHAPTER I

SOWING OF THE SEED

In 1761, when the Town of Rutland was chartered, it consisted of what is now the City as well as the Town of Rutland, West Rutland, and Sutherland Falls (now Proctor). The first settlers here were mainly Protestant farmers from Connecticut and Massachusetts who were looking for cheap, new farm land.

The first Catholics to settle in Rutland it is generally agreed were poor Irish immigrants. They began arriving in noticable numbers by the mid-1920's. Among those who brought the faith here, and whose descendants still retain it, were the Lystons, McMahons, Cliffords, Fitzgeralds, Kelleys, Brohans, Burns, etc.

The story behind the Irish immigration is a sad one. With a population of eight or nine million people, the agricultural base of the Emerald Isle was inadequate during the early 1800's. Then to compound the problem a severe potato blight for several years ravaged the staple crop of the Isle, causing widespread disease and starvation. Ireland, at this time, was also under the forced occupation and rule of Britain. The English, eager for the land to make money, converted much of the Irishman's farmland into sheep grazing. They also divided up remaining farmland into such small plots that it was impossible to make a living off them. These factors led to such widespread poverty and starvation that the Irish people had to leave their own country. Many came to America, where they spread out and settled down to make new homes and lives for themselves.

Some of them came to this area to begin farms in Shrewsbury, Tinmouth, Wallingford, Rutland, etc., while others found work in the iron mills in Pittsford. The Irish were all Catholics, of course, and so this steady increase of Catholics into Vermont finally came to the attention of Bishop Benedict Fenwick of Boston. (In 1808 the Diocese of Boston had been created, which included Vermont.)

Thus in July of 1830 Bishop Fenwick sent Father Jeremiah O'Callaghan to Vermont. His headquarters were in Burlington where the largest Irish Catholic population was, but his mission was to travel the state to wherever any Catholics might be. About four or five times a year Father O'Callaghan would travel by stagecoach, buggy, or horseback to Rutland. Masses were said in private homes during these early years. With the steady increase of Catholic immigrants into Vermont, Bishop Fenwick in 1837 sent another priest to help Father O'Callaghan. This was Father John Daly, a Franciscan. They divided the State into northern and southern halves, with Father Daly taking the southern half. By 1840, Father Daly listed twenty missions in southern Vermont that he visited, as well as seven in border towns in New York, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire. There were just under 5,000 Catholics he ministered to. Between the towns of Rutland, Pittsford, Shrewsbury, and Brandon he claimed that there were 400 Catholics.

These priests received no salary or stipend for their work. They lived on free-will offerings made only three times a year: Christmas, Easter, and once in the summer. Masses were still said in homes or in public buildings.

Father Daly visited Rutland each month, and offered Mass in a large building called "Ball Alley" on North Main Street up until 1858 when they began holding services in the Old Court House on Main Street.

The steady Irish Catholic immigration suddenly surged anew in 1846 with a second potato blight in Ireland. This time all the crops, including wheat, oats, and vegetables were affected. The migration became an exodus. These poor-starved immigrants arrived in the United States and Vermont just as the railroad construction boom began. Anxious for work, the Irish as a class became the workers who laid the rails. In Rutland, which was rapidly becoming a railroad center, the Irish worked the many railroad jobs, machine shops, and marble mining and cutting jobs.

By 1853, there were 20,000 Catholics in Vermont. Thus it was decided to create a new Diocese of Burlington that year, which would include the entire State. Father Louis DeGoesbriand, from Cleveland, Ohio, was appointed as the first Bishop.

Soon after Bishop DeGoesbriand was installed in Burlington, Father Daly asked to retire. After seventeen years of incessant travels between his missions by horseback in all kinds of weather he was beginning to feel his age. The Bishop granted his request in early October of 1854. The Bishop then asked Father Zephyoin Druan to assume Father Daly's duties.

Father Druan continued Father Daly's routine, but he also decided that Rutland ("East Rutland" as it was called) finally needed a Church of its own. It was estimated that 500 Catholics were living here. So in 1855 Father Druan purchased a piece of land on lower Meadow Street from John Cain for $125.00. That very year he built a small red brick church there. Concerned for the education of the children, Father Druan had also purchased a piece of land on West Street, opposite the Meadow Street entrance (now 273 West Street). The land records show he had paid Mr. Frederick Chaffee $500.00 for the lot.

The small school was completed by 1856, and in its first year enrolled fifty pupils.

This modest beginnings of Saint Peter's Parish was carried on by Father Druan while still visiting all of the missions in the southern half of the state. He was fortunate, however, in having an assistant assigned to him in 1855 following the first Priests Synod. In October of that year, the Reverend Francis Picant arrived in Saint Peter's Parish.

This necessitated a Rectory for the priests. Father Druan purchased a house lot on 21 Meadow Street from Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bean for $870.00 in 1856 to this end.

In November of 1856 Father Druan was transferred to Saint Augustine Parish in Montpelier, and Father Picant was made the Pastor. The young Father Charles Boylan, fresh from his ordination in December of that year, was assigned as the assistant pastor....but things certainly happened fast in those days, because in January of 1857, less than one month later, Father Picant was transferred to Saint Bridget's Mission in West Rutland, with the intention of making it a regular Parish of its own, with its own priest for the first time. Father Boylan was appointed Pastor of Saint Peter's Parish.

By this time Brattleboro, Middlebury, and now West Rutland had their own priests, and could take over some of the missions that had been the duties of the priests of Rutland. As it was, Father Boylan still had charge of Pittsford, Mount Holly, Wallingford, Danby, East Dorset, Manchester, Arlington, and the Benningtons. Over the next eleven years these missions, however, eventually got their own priests as they grew in size.

Saint Peter's, itself, was growing steadily. The school attendance was increasing each year by twenty or thirty students, so that by 1868 the school reported two hundred fifty students. As far as the actual Catholic population at this time there are no hard figures since the population of the missions were included. By 1860, when there were no missions left, the annual Parish Report listed 170 families, and 100 single people; about 800 souls in all. In 1875, it listed 285 families and 55 single persons, or about 1,200 parishioners.

Father Boylan realized by the early 1860's that his parish had already outgrown the small brick church at 11 Meadow Street, so he began to plan ahead to build a new one. In 1864 he bought a large piece of land on Wales Street from Ephrim Chapin for $1500.00. He then began raising the money. He got the Catholic ladies to conduct an Annual Fair for several years to help raise money. Beginning in 1870, an annual picnic was held, under the auspices of the Saint Peter's Hibernian Literary and Benevolent Society. This developed into quite the bash, and raised a lot of money.

Father Boylan must have had second thoughts about the Wales Street location because in 1867 he purchased the "Ledge" lot on the corner of Mechanic Street (now Convent Avenue) and Meadow Street. This was where the church was to be built.

FATHER BOYLAN MEMORIAL

SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF
REV. CHARLES BOYLAN

Who as pastor of St. Peter's for 30 years discharged his duties. With fidelity to his God, honor to himself and great edification to his flock, universally loved and esteemed he departed this life on the 4th of December 1886 in the 56th year of his age and 30th year of his priesthood.

CHAPTER II

THE HOUSE OF GOD

To design the new St. Peter's Church, Father Boylan secured the services of Mr. Patrick Keely, a noted Catholic architect from Brooklyn, New York. Mr. Keely was said to have built over 700 churches in his lifetime. With these plans, Father Boylan began construction in 1868.

First, the stone for the building had to be excavated from the site of the church itself. This was done by the parishioners themselves, many of whom were employed by the marble companies in Center and West Rutland. Tradition has it that Father Boylan would announce from the pulpit each Sunday which day of the upcoming week the men were to come to work on the church. The men would bring their picks, shovels, hammers, and even teams of horses to work on their edifice to God. Father Boylan worked right along with the rest of the men.

On July 5, 1869, the site was ready, and Bishop DeGoesbriand blessed the cornerstone of the church in the presence of all the parishioners. Several stone masons were hired to raise the walls of the church, but much of the backbreaking work of moving the blocks and mixing the mortar was done by the men of the parish. The stone walls were finished by the summer of 1870, and work began on the roof by that fall. All of the construction was under the supervision of Father Boylan, who was meticulous in carrying out the plans of the architect.

By early September of 1871, the exterior of the church was completed. There was a big ceremony on September 3rd for the positioning of a beautiful gilt cross over the front gable of the church. A procession from the old church to the new was made with all the parishioners and societies and local priests.

Exactly a year later, much of the interior work was completed, and the tower and steeple were erected. A huge bronze cross was affixed to the top of the steeple following another procession and much fanfare. Everybody hoped to celebrate Christmas in the new church, but it wasn't even until March of 1873 that the building could be opened for inspection.

Finally on Easter Sunday, April 3, 1873, the parishioners of St. Peter's entered their new church to celebrate the High Mass. The proud congregation with their friends and dignitaries formed another procession at the old church on lower Meadow Street and marched to the new building. Headed by the choir, which sang hymns on the way, the procession was made up of the Women's Sodality, the Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society, the Hiberian Literary and Benevolent Society, the school children, then the parishioners, with Father Boylan and the Altar Boys bringing up the rear.

In his sermon, Father Boylan praised the people for their generosity, their hard work, and the sacrifices they's made to build this monument to God. Incredibly, they's built the church with no debts, encumbrances, or mortgages on the property. He urged them to continue giving generously, as there still was much work to be done. When the collection was taken up that morning, it amounted to $9. Such was the generosity of the parishioners.

But the glow of satisfaction that was felt by the people and their pastor was well earned. They had given generously from their meager salaries ($5 per week), their time, and even their savings. Father Boylan himself gave everything he had to the building, never keeping even marriage, baptism, or mass intention money for himself.

The church that the parishioners admired that Easter Sunday was a magnificent Gothic structure of blue grey stone. It was 150 feet long and 71 feet wide. There was a wide piazza across the front leading to the three entrances. Gold crosses were affixed to all the prominent peaks of the building. The spire soared 200 feet above the ground, and had a huge bronze cross atop it. The roof was of grey green slate.

The interior of the church was 103 feet long and 61 feet wide. The pews were of oiled chestnut trimmed with black walnut, and could seat 1,400 people. They were the work of Mr. Milo Lyman of Rutland and Mr. Hopson of Whitehall, New York. The church was lit by 285 gas jets, with four jets to a fixture, which were mounted in a circle around each column.

The windows were the work of the Morgan Brothers of New York City. Most of the side windows are of colored glass, but the two nearest the sanctuary are of stained glass. The one to the east being of St. Patrick, and the one to the west of St. Peter.

In the sanctuary itself, there were three beautiful stained glass windows over the altar. The center one, which still remains today, is of the Ascension of Our Lord. There were two stained glass windows flanking this center one, which though they still are there today, are not visible from inside the church. (They were sealed off by Father Joyce when he renovated the church in the 1940's.) The one to the east was of St. Joachim and Anne, and the one to the west was of Joseph and Mary.

The early parishioners would also have seen a wooden altar rail separating them from the sanctuary. The altar was on a raised platform three steps high. What must have grabbed the peoples' attention, however, was a magnificent fresco done on the sanctuary wall high above the stained glass windows. This was one of the largest frescoes in the United States at that time, measuring 60 feet by 28 feet and containing 264 figures. Since this fresco is now gone forever, it is worth describing it as the parishioners at that first mass had seen it.

The central figure was that of Christ sitting in judgment with the symbol of the cross behind Him. On both sides of Him were groups of figures - those on the left the prophets and patriarchs of the Old Testament, and those on His right the martyrs, confessors, virgins and others from the new dispensation. Beneath Jesus was St. Michael the Archangel, who with drawn sword is dividing the just from the unjust. The elect are to his right, while to his left are the damned, looking suitably tormented. The figures were large and very striking.

On the east wall of the main sanctuary there was another fresco of the Nativity of Our Lord, while on the opposite wall there was a large fresco of the Resurrection of Jesus from the dead. Over the two side altars were more paintings. The west altar wall had a fresco of the Holy Family, with Jesus as a child working as a carpenter. The east altar had another fresco of the Annunciation. The frescoes, which were considered extremely good; were all done by Lang and Kenkelin of New York.

The actual cost of the church is uncertain. Various accounts mention $60,000.00 or $100,000.00. There still remained a few large items to be finished. Landscaping and a cast iron fence were finally added in 1875. The bells were yet to be installed. (Father Boylan had procrastinated on the bells while starting a new project; a convent for the Sister.) The organ was soon recognized as being inadequate, barely filling the church with sound.

Dedication of the new church was planned for June 29th, at which the Right Reverend John Loughlin, Bishop of Brooklyn, N.Y., would preach the dedication sermon. That Sunday, the feast day of St. Peter and St. Paul, the priests, bishops, parishioners and societies again formed a procession from the old church on Meadow St. to the new one. Bishop DeGoesbriand had given Father Thomas Lynch, V.G. permission to bless the church. Chanting prayers and sprinkling holy water everywhere, Father Lynch led the procession around the church and then into it. The list of attending dignitaries and church officials is too numerous to give here, but it was quite impressive. The whole ceremony was very elaborate and lengthy, and being a summer day, rather warm.

It was not until December that the bells were installed, with again much hoopla, a procession, and sprinkling with holy water. As is still the custom, each bell received a name. The largest, weighing 3,000 lbs., was named St. Peter. The next largest, weighing 1,500 lbs., was called St. Mary, and the smallest bell (800 lbs.) was christened St. Joseph. St. Aloysius was also blessed at that same time, a small bell for the parochial school.

For eleven years the church was heated by furnaces and hot stones placed around the church. In 1884 Father Boylan installed steam heat. The old church on Meadow St. was sold in 1887 to Mr. Fredrick Chaffee. It was used for years as a marble shop. Presently it is the headquarters for the Romano Brothers Trucking Company.

On December 4, 1886, Father Boylan died. A more complete account of the enormous work this holy man performed for the parish is included in the chapter on the pastors, but suffice it to say the parishioners deeply felt his loss. It was immediately suggested by Father Gaffney, who was assigned to replace Father Boylan, that a monument be erected to Father Boylan over his grave, and that a new memorial organ be installed in the church. By early spring the parishioners had already given over $3000.00 to fund these two tributes to their former pastor.

The new pipe organ arrived from Boston and was installed by the end of June. There was a big dedication ceremony on the fourth of July. The statue of Father Boylan took a bit longer. The contract was let to the Houlihan Brothers Marble Shop in Center Rutland. Both the pedestal and statue were to be of "Rutland Italian" marble, which took a lot of searching to find. It wasn't until 1888 that two suitable pieces were found.

Mr. Charles Jarrott, a sculptor from New York, had been engaged to carve the statue. It was to be seven feet tall, with the full priestly robes that Father Boylan used to wear. It was completed in February of 1889, and many reports claimed it was an excellent likeness of the good father. It was placed on the pedestal over the grave of Father Boylan at the northwest corner of the church, where it still remains today.

There have been many repairs, renovations and improvements in the church's long history. In 1891 Father Gaffney installed new gas plumbing and fixtures in the church at a cost of $1,500.00. Because gas lights over the years were sooty he had to wash and repaint the entire church that same year. He also imported from Munich, Germany the stations of the cross, and had them installed. In 1892 he had a new steam boiler installed to replace the old one. From then until 1929 not much was done to the church. In that year electric lights were installed for the first time in the church, as well as another new boiler.

During the Depression money was scarce for churches as well as people. When the roof sprung a leak during the early 1930's, water extensively damaged the east wall of the inside of the church. This, combined with years of dust and dirt made St. Peter's look rather desperate.

Thus when Father Robert Joyce took over the parish in 1946 he immediately planned to do a major facelift to the church. By 1948 the interior of St. Peter's Church looked quite different. A new buff colored paint job was offset by a gold colored center ceiling. There were three new altars all of marble. Angels were painted along the side walls. The ceilings over the side aisles were blue with pure gold leaf figures and symbols.

Behind the altar was a high wooden reredas, hand carved, with a carved wooden statue of St. Peter. There was a lot of other hand carved wooden scenes and statues as well. A new altar rail was installed, along with green carpeting. A complete new electrical system was installed, with modern bathdown lights and lanterns. Red leather doors were installed in the three inner entrances. New kneeling cushions, marble baptismal font, confessionals, rest room, and of course another new heating system were all part of the renovation. In the sanctuary Father Joyce sealed off the three stained glass windows and painted over all the frescoes. Above the altar and the wooden reredas was suspended a wooden baldicino. Biblical inscriptions were stencilled on a red background on the walls to both sides of the altar. Many ornate symbols, figures and geometric patterns graced the remaining wall and ceiling surfaces, in vibrant colors. The sacristy was also refurbished with new closets and vestment cases.

The entire renovation was funded by the money left to the church by the deceased Father Brown.

This work was barely finished, when on Thanksgiving Day, in 1950, a hurricane ripped into Rutland from the south and badly damaged the high steeple of St. Peter's Church. It was so badly twisted and cracked that Father Joyce along with Bishop Ryan decided against repairing it, having it instead removed and the tower simply capped.

In 1968 Monsignor Connor had a new side entrance added to the church to aid the handicapped and the elderly. In 1969 new exterior lights were added to the front of the church. A new parking lot was added by filling in the lot on the west side of Meadow Street across from the rectory.

A final major renovation of the interior of the church was undertaken by Monsignor Connor to commemorate the centennial of the parish, which was in 1973. Most of the work was done in the winter of 1973, with a large dedication service held that June. The altar rail and all of the statues were removed, with the exception of the wooden statue of St. Peter, which was placed in the main entranceway of the church. The church received a fresh coat of buff colored paint, covering all of the ornate stencils on the walls and ceiling of the sanctuary. The wooden reredas was moved to the far left sanctuary wall, in front of the east side pews. It became the backdrop for what is called the Altar of Repose. By moving this out of the main sanctuary, the center stained glass window was once again exposed. A new table shaped altar was installed, using pieces of the previous marble altar. Red carpeting was laid throughout the entire church. The baptismal font was moved up to the far right sanctuary space, in front of the west side pews. The new interior stressed functional simplicity, tastefully keeping to the directives of Vatican II.

CHAPTER III

ST. PETER'S PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

When the Irish Catholics arrived in Vermont they found that often the public elementary schools, while professing to be nondenominational, were in fact dominated by Protestant beliefs and practices. Usually the school day began with a prayer and a reading from the Protestant Bible, and then a hymn. In some places the children were required to own a Protestant Bible, and failure to do so was grounds for expulsion. At that time Catholics were strictly forbidden to read from a Protestant Bible, so the beginnings of a conflict are easily seen. There were other problems as well. In Brattleboro for example, the Catholic children were refused permission to attend Mass on holy days of obligation. Those children who left school anyway were expelled for the rest of the term, and were only allowed in the following term provided they promised not to miss school for holy days again.

So for these reasons and others the Catholics as soon as they were numerous enough to build a church, usually built a parochial school as well. They wanted to educate their children according to their own religious beliefs as well as provide a sound secular education.

In Rutland, the first parochial school was a house purchased by Father Druan in the fall of 1855 from Mr. Fredrick Chaffee for $500.00. The house still stands today at 273 West Street. As a school it did very well. It started that year with 50 pupils and expanded each year until by 1865 there were 250 students enrolled with two lay teachers. Needless to say the house couldn't hold them all, nor could the teachers cope with such a large student body.

Father Boylan began making plans for a new school. He arranged for temporary use of the public school building for his children with their own teachers for the school year of 1866-67. The house on West St. was sold to Mr. William Sammon for $450.00. Having purchased the "Ledge" lot on Mechanics St., he began building the new school there, with the help of the parishioners. Work went well, and the new school was ready by the fall term of 1867. The total cost of construction was $7,500.00.

With completion of the new St. Peter's Church in 1873, it was decided to convert the school into the rectory, and move the classes down to the old church on 11 Meadow St. The building was refitted, and a wooden addition was made providing two more classrooms. Up until 1873 lay teachers had been hired, but with the beginning of fall session in 1873, Father Boylan had managed to obtain five Sisters of St. Joseph to run the school. They were originally from Flushing, N.Y. There were still lay teachers in the school as well however. The Parish Report makes mention of a Miss Bridget O'Neil, and a Miss Sheridan teaching the '70's.

St. Peter's School remained at 11 Meadow St. from 1873 until 1885. Attendance remained around 350 students most of the time. The building itself began to get rather delapidated by the early 1880's, however, and Father Boylan, after building the new church and a new convent for the Sisters, began plans to build a new school as well.

In 1882 he purchased the lot just south of the rectory from Mrs. Bridget McDonough for $1,300.00. He began a subscription drive to raise money, and the ladies of the parish used their Bazaar again to help. The lot on Wales St. was sold off as well. Mr. William Enright is recorded as having lent over $1,300.00 to the parish to help build a school.

Construction began in the winter of '83 with the parishioners again doing all the manual labor. The masons began laying the red bricks that spring, and by November of that same year it was almost finished. The new school was only two stories high, with a cruciform shape. There were six classrooms; three downstairs for the boys and three upstairs for the girls. The total cost was around $15,000.00

Incredible as it may seem, Father Boylan then turned to providing a school for the Catholic children on the eastern side of the town, so they wouldn't have to walk all the way to St. Peter's. It was called St. Mary's School, and was the beginning of what is now Christ the King School.

Attendance at the two schools grew rapidly. (Thanks in part to the new Howe Scales factory which brought in a new migration of poor Irish Catholics looking for work.) By 1903 there were 650 students. By then a new addition had been made by Father Gaffney (in 1898) providing four new classrooms. In 1900 the basement under the school was cemented. One sketchy point in the school history is when the third floor hall was added. Hints from the Rutland Herald suggest the hall was added in 1887 for the Young Men's Catholic Union as a gymnasium. It might have been built in 1898 when Father Gaffney was adding the south wing classrooms.

In 1923 the school was wired for electricity, and in 1930 modern plumbing was installed as well as a fresh coat of paint. During the Depression nothing was done to the school, but in 1940 the steel staircase on the Meadow St. side was added.

A six classroom addition was built in 1950 on the north end of the school, with major renovations done at the same time to the old building. New windows, sprinklers, floors and ceilings were installed.

During the 1971-72 school year Monsignor Connor announced that grades one to six would be discontinued at St. Peter's School. Only grades seven and eight would be held the following year. He had reached this decision after months of discussion with St. Peter's School Board, the Parish Council and many of the parishioners. Monsignor Connor stated the reason for the closing was primarily financial; for the past six years the parish had been losing money on the school. Up until 1971 the parish had been drawing on a special reserve fund to cover the school deficit, but this year the fund was exhausted. The pastor noted that one of the largest contributing factors to the rising school costs was the drastic change in the ratio of nuns to lay teachers. In 1966 there were thirteen nuns and four lay teachers. In 1972 there were nine nuns and eight lay teachers.

Not unexpectedly, following the 1972-73 school year Monsignor Connor had to announce that there would be no 7th and 8th grades at St. Peter's School either. The parish would depend on a religious education program to instruct the children, using the school building. The classes would be held after the regular school day classes. The building was leased to the city school department.

In the spring of 1978, the city school board announced it would not renew the lease of the school. This decision had a very detrimental impact on the parish. The rent money was crucial to the parish in its attempt to support Mount Saint Joseph Academy. Further, the parish had no money for maintenance of the school building itself, or for the fuel bills, both of which were being provided by the city as part of the lease. A special referendum was held in May of 1978, in which the voters of Rutland agreed to a tax increase to continue the St. Peter's School lease. In early June the City School Board announced that they refused to change their position, and rejected the tax increase as unnecessary. This was despite the will of the voters, and the fact that before the referendum the School Board stated they would go along with the voters' mandate.

Father Lively, beginning that same spring, began renovations on the ground floor classrooms. Combining two of the rooms, he built the Emmaus Room; a chapel/multi-purpose room. A large folding door was installed between the other two ground floor rooms to make them more versatile as dining rooms. A new kitchen was installed as well. Previously, Father Lively had renovated the large third floor hall, and had brought the entire building up to current fire safety standards.

CHAPTER IV

MOUNT ST. JOSEPH'S CONVENT

In the summer of 1883 Father Boylan travelled to the Sisters of St. Joseph Mother House Convent, in Flushing, Long Island, to appeal for volunteers for his parochial school. So well did he plead his case that five Sisters; Mother Austin and Sisters Irene, Patricia, Anastasia, and Paul, agreed to come to Rutland.

Elated, Father Boylan returned to St. Peter's, and along with converting the old church on Meadow St. into a school, he redecorated the old rectory at 21 Meadow into a suitable convent. The Sisters moved in that fall, and began teaching in the school. Unfortunately, in January of 1875, a fire broke out in the convent which destroyed the roof, and along with the water damage from the fire fighters, made it totally uninhabitable. Father Boylan temporarily found other living quarters for himself and then turned the rectory over to the Sisters to live in.

By this time the Sisters in Rutland as well as in Brattleboro and Bennington were recognized as an invaluable aid to the parishes. Thus in the summer of 1875 Bishop DeGoesbriand wrote to Mother Theresa, the Flushing Superior, requesting a separate Novitiate to be founded in Rutland. She agreed, making the Sisters of St. Joseph in Rutland a Diocesan order, independent of the Flushing Convent. Sister Philip McDonough was sent to be the first Superior General.

On September 8, 1876, the burnt house on Meadow St. was sold to John and Thomas Caden for $1,000.00. Father Boylan began plans for a new convent on Mechanics St., across from the new St. Peter's Church. He had actually purchased the land two years earlier from Mr. Thomas Hubbard for $800.00. An adjoining house lot was also purchased at the same time from Mr. James Jones for $2,000.00, which probably served as the temporary rectory after the fire.

Construction began in the spring of 1876, and again Father Boylan called on his parishioners, who had just finished the church, to help build the convent. Rumor had it that the new convent plans were referred to as "Boylan's Folly", since they seemed so large for just eight nuns.

Progress on the four-story building appears to have been a bit slow. It wasn't until February of 1882 that the nuns moved into their new home, which even then was unfinished. But new young ladies were already joining the Sisters each year. The Rutland Herald contained lengthy articles in 1877, '78 and '79 covering the initiation ceremonies held in St. Peter's Church.

In the spring of 1882 Mount St. Joseph's Academy opened its doors as a boarding school for girls. That first year there were fifty-one students and one boarder. The Bishop on August 2, 1882 solemnly blessed the new Convent and Chapel.

The number of Sisters of St. Joseph grew steadily over the years. From the original eight in 1882, their ranks swelled to twenty just four years later. By 1966 there were 166 Sisters in the Convent. Those early years appear to have been rough for the nuns. Winter heating was confined to the kitchen and dining rooms. The Parish paid their salaries, but often not in full. They depended on the generosity of the parishioners for much of their food.

The Sisters did do extensive gardening to provide vegetables for themselves. At first they purchased a strip of land just north of the Convent from Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lynch in 1882 for that purpose, but they soon began buying land on the west side of Meadow St. to East Creek to Otter Creek. The land now occupied by the Meadow St. playground was their garden. The land behind what is now the Anna Mathew's Annex was the site for their barn, containing about 12 cows, and a chicken coop. These farming activities which the Sisters did themselves along with two hired hands, continued into the 1930's.

Between teaching for the two parochial schools, their own elementary and secondary school, and their farming concerns the Sisters were quite busy. The Convent school itself became very popular over the years so that by 1923, the Golden Jubilee of their being in Rutland, they decided to expand their physical plant space. They began various fund raising activities that netted $250,000.00 for the project by 1926. Construction began that year, and by the fall of 1927 it was finished. That September the new St. Joseph's Academy, adjacent to the Convent, admitted freshman boys for the first time, and continued to do so from then on.

Up until 1946 one of the Sisters had always been principal of the Academy. In 1947 Father Edward Fitzimons became the first priest principal, though the Sisters still kept control of the administration. He was followed by Father John Lynch, then Father Wendell Searles, and then Father John O'Connell. Starting in the fall of 1975 Father Richard Lavallee became the principal, a job which he has kept to date.

A final addition was made to the Academy in 1950 bringing it up to its present size. This was a large gymnasium/auditorium, cafeteria, office, and classroom addition. For years later the Sisters of St. Joseph relinquished the administration of Mt. St. Joseph Academy to the pastors and a lay school committee from the three parishes in Rutland. Hereafter, the Sisters who taught there received a basic salary.

In the late 1950's the Sisters acquired the Clement property on Dorr Drive, on the West side of the City. Here they opened a college; The College of St. Joseph the Provider. Sister Mary Mathew McDevitt was its first president. The college was first designed to train their own postulates and novices as elementary school teachers, but they soon opened the enrollment for any young women who wanted to teach. In the late '60's new dormitories and classrooms were built, and the emphasis on special education took hold. The college presently enjoys a reputation of having one of the best special education programs in the State.

CHAPTER V

THE CEMETERY

It was not until 1866 that St. Peter's Parish had a cemetery. Father Boylan bought three acres of land opposite Chaffee's Lumberyard on January 16, 1866 for $200.

From that time on, burials took place here. It has been told that in those days the funeral procession walked from the wake-house to the church and thence to the cemetery, the pallbearers carrying the casket (a pine box) on their shoulders all the way. This was the custom in Ireland, and it was brought here. Sometimes the walk would be from as far away as Green Street (now Killington Avenue). Of course, the casket would not be nearly as heavy as those of today.

For thirty-five years, this cemetery was in use. The burial records show that until 1884 there was an average of twenty to twenty-five burials a year. After 1884, it almost doubled.

The present cemetery property was bought by Father Gaffney from Frederick Chaffee on July 19, 1887 for $10,000. The parish paid $5000, and Frederick Chaffee held a mortgage for the other $5000, which was paid off.

This cemetery on the south end of Meadow Street was only a five minute walk from the church. But it did not begin to be used until 1891. Work had to be done to put this property in shape to be used as a cemetery. In 1889, it was fenced and otherwise improved at the expense of $971. In 1890, the cemetery was further improved at a cost of $960.

On May 22, 1891, the Rutland Herald stated "The bodies in the cemetery of St. Peter's Church, opposite Chaffee's Lumberyard, will be gradually moved into the new cemetery as soon as it is ready. Several owners of lots in the old cemetery have already bought lots in the new one."

The annual May Procession held May 31, 1891 concluded with benediction of the Blessed Sacrament in the new cemetery.

Father Gaffney arranged with Bishop DeGoesbriand to have him come to Rutland to consecrate this new cemetery. The societies and sodalities of the parish were asked to come in a body for the ceremonies. The choir and the school children practiced hymns to be sung.

The date set for the occasion was June 28, 1891. All met at the church and lined up. The choir and school children headed the procession followed by the members of the sodalities, the Young Men's Catholic Union (with five members) and the St. Peter's Hibernian Society. These were followed by members of the clergy (Fathers Gaffney, Caffey, Proulx of Rutland, O'Reilly of West Rutland and Brennan of New York). Lastly, came the acolytes and the Bishop.

Shortly before 6 p.m., the procession started for the cemetery. The choir and school children sang hymns appropriate to the occasion.

A large marble cross had been erected in the center of the cemetery. Around this cross the crowd gathered. The Bishop and the clergy stood at the foot of the cross and the rite of consecration began.

The Bishop began with a prayer to God asking that "He bless, sanctify, and consecrate this cemetery so that the human bodies, after having finished the course of life, while waiting the great day of judgment, may merit the joys of eternal life."

The Litanies of the Saints was then read, everyone responding. After this, the Bishop sprinkled the cross with Holy Water. The Bishop walked around the limits of the cemetery sprinkling Holy Water everywhere, while the psalm (50) "Miserere" was recited.

Back at the cross, the Bishop prayed that God would cleanse, bless, sanctify, and consecrate this cemetery so that all who trusted in Him, having through His great mercy, obtained the remission of all their sins, their bodies quietly waiting in this cemetery for the trumpet call of the archangel would recline in His consolation.

"The Bishop then addressed the crowd, telling them 'the cemetery was consecrated and therefore holy ground'. The large cross in the center of the cemetery represented the tree of life...As Christ rose from the dead so will the righteous arise when the angel of God calls out the summons. Then will be the judgment and the blessed will go to life everlasting. All those who die in the communion of the church, whether rich or poor, have a right to be buried in the cemetery. But no one who dies in an intoxicating state, or commits suicide, or is excommunicated can be laid at rest here."

After the ceremonies, the societies formed in line, headed by the school children and sodalities and marched to the church at 7:30 p.m. Vespers were sung and the Bishop officiated at solemn Benediction.

Although this was the practice around the turn of the century, by the 1930's the full force of the law was mitigated, so that a person dying in an intoxicated state or committing suicide today is given the benefit of the doubt that at least a spark of sorrow may have been present before death actually takes place. We, therefore, leave the state of the soul to the mercy of God. These earlier regulations were matters of church discipline, trying to curb the evils of the day.

The pastor is in charge of the cemetery. A caretaker has charge of the work of keeping it neat.

Many of those who had members of their families buried in the old cemetery moved these bodies in the 1890's to the new Calvary Cemetery. This explains why we find quite a number of monuments there which predate the present cemetery. Some did not take advantage of this, and their monuments and graves are still in the old West Street cemetery.

In 1914, Father Brown had the present vault erected.

To aid in the care of the cemetery, Father Brown introduced the system known as "Perpetual Care" in 1911. To put a lot under Perpetual Care, the lot holder entrusted the cemetery with an amount of money (for example, $50 a grave in a lot - a four grave lot, $200). The cemetery invested this, for example, in a bank. The annual interest on this money would go to the maintenance of this lot. This is to go on in perpetuum. Previous to this date, cemetery dues were charged for this purpose.

In 1911, the sum of $557 in Perpetual Care funds was invested in the Clement Bank in Rutland. By 1922, these funds grew to $6,350.75. In 1925, the funds amounted to $13,075.75. In 1930, it was $25,660.75; in 1938, $40,010.75; and today, about $150,000 is in the Perpetual Care funds. This brings in a tidy amount in interest to maintain the cemetery in good condition.

In 1965, Father Cannon began to collect a development fund to aid in beautifying the cemetery. At that time, the two stone gates (obtained from the entrance to Mt. St. Joseph's Novitiate on Dorr Drive) were set in place beside the east road entrance to the cemetery.

The old St. Peter's Cemetery on West Street is still in existence. Quite a number of lots were emptied of graves shortly after the new cemetery opened in the 1890's. But a large number of families elected to leave the remains of their loved ones interred there. So that today, quite a number of graves are still undisturbed.

Since the care of the lots was left to the lot holders (there was no Perpetual Care on this cemetery), the cemetery for many years was overgrown with grass and brush, gravestones had tipped over and laid flat on the ground. The fence around the cemetery, installed by Father Gaffney, had become dilapidated and was torn down.

However, during Father Joyce's pastorate, the cemetery was improved by leveling the ground and is now mowed several times during the summer season. Father Joyce tried to obtain permission from the survivors of the original lot owners to moved the remains of those buried there to the present Calvary Cemetery. Some of these people refused to give this permission, and consequently, this cemetery is still in existence.

CHAPTER VI

OUR MOTHER OF SORROWS PARISH, 1907-1908

Around the turn of the century, many Italian people began to settle in the Rutland area. They worked in the marble industry, on the railroads, and in the forests cutting and planting trees. They received $1.25 a day, which was the prevailing rate, for a ten hour day. By 1906, it was estimated between 500 and 800 Italians were living in Rutland and the surrounding towns of Proctor, Fair Haven, West Rutland and Center Rutland.

These Italians were mostly Catholic and could speak very little English. The majority seldom if ever, attended masses at the local churches. But in 1907, Father Francis Crociata, an Italian priest, moved to Rutland from the Danby area and began holding services.

Father Crociata had been ordained in 1901 by Bishop Cajetan Quottrochi of Mazarien, Italy, where he stayed until 1904 before moving to the United States. In the summer and fall of 1906, he stayed in Danby, with permission from Bishop Michaud. He then moved to Cleveland Avenue in Rutland, in early 1907. He began holding services for the Italians in a rented room above the Rutland Star Lunch on Evelyn Street. After several months there, he moved to the Italian Club hall next door, behind what is now the A&J Auto Parts store. Supposedly, he began living there himself and ate his meals with the different Italian families. These places of worship were called the Church of our Mother of Sorrows.

In the fall of 1907, he began to make plans to build an Italian church in Rutland. The Diocese of Burlington purchased a piece of land on Evergreen Avenue for this purpose from the estate of the late William H. Dunton. Being a very steep lot, the plans were for the Italians themselves to cut down the hill, dig a cellar hole, and lay a foundation.

This was accomplished rapidly, and Father Crociata began asking for subscriptions to build the church, which was patterned after one in Italy. He also asked that each Italian contribute one day's wages toward the construction costs. Up until now, the plans for the new church had the blessings and approval of the surrounding parish pastors. But in December of 1907, Father Brown of St. Peter's and Father Proulx of Immaculate Heart of Mary had a change of heart.

Father Brown, from the pulpit, told his parishioners that the Italians were planning to make a house-to-house canvas of all the parishes to raise money for their church. He condemned this course of action on the grounds that he was having enough trouble making ends meet at St. Peter's without having to have the Italians cut into the pie as well. Father Brown claimed that the Italians were not familiar with the American system of personal support for their churches, and in fact, were not contributing anything, but were planning on having the other parishes build their church for them!

Needless to say, quite a controversy ensued. Both parties visited Bishop Michaud in Burlington to complain. Father Crociata rejected the suggestion he buy the old church building on lower Meadow Street and proclaimed their church would be built.

The Bishop finally decided to intervene personally to cool down a heated confrontation. He sent a letter on December 14th to both the Rutland Herald and the Rutland Evening News, which was published on December 17th. The letter, which was quite lengthy, laid down some guidelines dealing with parish boundaries, responsibilities, and methods of fund raising and soliciting. The bottom line was that Father Crociata could not send agents into other parishes to solicit any funds, and that he hadn't received the final approval of the Bishop to build the church yet anyway.

The letter calmed things down a little, but the debates still continued from the pulpits. The following Sunday, Father Brown read the letter from the pulpit, claiming it exonerated his actions. He further argued that the Italians, besides not supporting their church financially, were indifferent in their religious practices as well. He claimed the usual Sunday attendance at Our Mother of Sorrows Church in the Italian Club was around twenty people, hardly enough to build another church for.

Not much else is mentioned about the Italian parish from then on. There was a bazaar held in February of 1908, but it didn't generate much enthusiasm.

The Sunday services continued to be held for several months, but then they too stopped. Before the end of the year, Father Crociata left Rutland, and from then on, the Italian people came under the jurisdiction of St. Peter's Parish. The furnishings of the hall of the Italian Club, which had been the home of Our Mother of Sorrows Church, had to be sold to pay off some debts incurred by the church. In the 1950's, the property on Evergreen Avenue was sold by the Diocese, and later resold to the New England Telephone Company.

It is interesting to note that technically Our Mother of Sorrows Parish was not closed permanently, but could in fact be reactivated some day.

CHAPTER VII THE PASTORS THE REVEREND JEREMIAH O'CALLAGHAN

Father O'Callaghan was born in County Kerry, Ireland in 1780. He was ordained in the Diocese of Cloyne in 1805. Because of his extreme views on the evils of banking and usury, he was discharged from his duties in 1819. For eleven years, he wandered around England, Europe and North America looking for a Bishop who would hire him. While wandering through Boston, he met Bishop Fenwick, and appealed to him for a job. The Bishop, at that time, was just realizing that he had over 1,000 Irish Catholics settling in Burlington, Vermont making it the third largest Catholic settlement in his Diocese. Yet they were without a single priest. There were also reports of a growing Catholic population in the Rutland-Wallingford area. Figuring that Father O'Callaghan could do little damage with his pet theories on usury in Vermont, where there were few banks, Bishop Fenwick, in 1830, hired the Irishman to take care of the entire state.

With Burlington as his home, Father O'Callaghan organized and periodically visited missions around the state, wherever Catholics happened to be. Those missions were St. Albans, Swanton, Highgate, Fairfield, Montpelier, Underhill, St. Johnsbury, Vergennes, Middlebury, Brandon, Pittsford, Rutland, Castleton, Tinmouth, Poultney, Wallingford, Dorset, and Bennington. For brief periods, there were several other priests who came to Vermont to assist Reverend O'Callaghan, but they never stayed for very long.

Finally, in 1837, Father Daly came to Vermont, and stayed. He agreed to take over the five southern counties in the state, leaving Father O'Callaghan free to devote more time to the northern missions.

On December 16, 1853, only a few weeks after Bishop DeGoesbriand was installed as the first Bishop of the new Diocese, Father O'Callaghan asked to leave the Diocese, and was given permission. At that time, he was 73 years old. He returned to the Diocese of Boston, where he served as pastor of St. Jerome's Church in Holyoke, Massachusetts, which he helped design and build. He died there on February 23, 1861.

THE REVEREND JOHN B. DALY, O.F.M.

In 1837, Bishop Fenwick hired Father John Daly, a Franciscan, to help Father O'Callaghan minister to the missions in Vermont. Using Middlebury as his headquarters, Father Daly travelled extensively across the southern half of the state, visiting all the settlements where there were Catholics. Soon he had twenty-seven established missions, with several spread out even into northern Massachusetts and western New Hampshire. He added the following to the original list of Father O'Callaghan's: Manchester, Bellows Falls, Plymouth, Norwich, Windsor, and Woodstock.

In 1840, he estimated that there were 500 Catholics in Middlebury, 150 in Castleton, and a combined total of 400 for the towns of Brandon, Pittsford, Rutland, Wallingford, and Shrewsbury. "East" Rutland was still very small, having only 100 dwellings and thirteen stores.

The accounts of his life all record Father Daly's dedication and zeal. For seventeen years, he travelled by horseback or foot, seldom staying in the same place more than one night, to minister to his people. As was the practice at this time, he received no salary or stipend, but lived off the goodwill offerings made three times a year - - on Christmas, Easter, and in the summer.

In 1874, he added Ludlow, Arlington, Northfield and Rockingham to his list of missions.

He requested permission to leave the Diocese on October 3, 1854, which was granted. He returned to his religious order in New York City, where he served for the next eighteen years as chaplain of a female orphanage. He died there on December 11, 1872.

THE VERY REVEREND ZEPHYAIN DRUAN V.G.

Zephyain Druan was born on March 4, 1830 in Vendin Lelieel, Pas de Calais, France. He was ordained to the priesthood on July 2, 1853, at Beauvais, France for the Diocese of Cleveland, U.S.A. He was a curate in Cleveland, however, for only four months. In December of '53, he transferred to the new Diocese of Burlington, Vermont.

Bishop DeGoesbriand immediately sent the new priest to handle the missions of Bennington, Brattleboro, and Bellows Falls. Since none of these missions had churches yet, Father Druan began plans to provide some immediately. By the end of 1874, he had built the first St. Francis de Sales Church in Bennington, bought an old schoolhouse in Brattleboro and converted it into a church, and bought a house in Bellows Falls to be used as their church. This was quite a feat, yet he had no time to enjoy his accomplishments, for that same fall, Father John Daly left the Diocese, forcing Bishop DeGoesbriand to appoint Father Druan as minister to all of the southern missions in his place.

Father Druan decided to use Rutland as his home grounds, from which he visited all of the Vermont missions Father Daly used to visit. He was aided, however, by the Reverend Francis Picart, who was assigned as his curate. St. Peter's Parish really began with Father Druan's purchase of three pieces of property - - one for a church, a rectory, and a school. He built the first church on lower Meadow Street. The first rectory and school were actually nearby houses. That same year (1855), he built a wooden frame church and schoolroom in West Rutland. He also purchased land in Pittsford for a church and rectory.

On November 16, 1856, Father Druan was transferred from St. Peter's Parish to St. Augustine's in Montpelier. Here he again purchased land and built a church and a cemetery. He also built a church in Randolph, which was one of his several missions in Montpelier.

On March 4, 1864, several churches later, Bishop DeGoesbriand appointed him Vicar General. He was installed as Pastor of St. Mary's Church in St. Albans, where he stayed until his death on January 27, 1891, after a pastorate of twenty-five years. He had served as a priest for the Diocese for thirty-eight years, and had built fourteen churches, as well as many school and rectories.

THE REVEREND FRANCIS PICART

Francis Picart was born in Finistenne, France. While still a seminarian, he heard Bishop DeGoesbriand speak on the need for priests in Vermont; and he decided to join the new Diocese. He came to Vermont immediately after his ordination in 1855, and was assigned as a curate to St. Peter's Parish in Rutland. The following fall, Father Picart was appointed Pastor of the Parish following Father Druan's transfer to Montpelier.

Father Picart's stay as pastor of St. Peter's was very short indeed. He had convinced the Bishop of the need to create a parish in West Rutland, due to the fact that three/fifths of the Catholics in the area lived there. Thus on January 27, 1857, he was transferred to Holy Rosary Parish in Richmond, Vermont, where he stayed less than a year before being transferred to St. Mary's Parish in Middlebury. Here he stayed a bit longer, but in 1866, he received permission to transfer to the Diocese of Maine, where he stayed until his death in June of 1870.

THE MOST REVEREND CHARLES J. BOYLAN

The Reverend Charles Boylan was from the "olde sod". He was born in Kilnelneck, County Caven, Ireland in 1830. After his early education in the local schools, he went into the seminary in Ireland. He decided he wanted to be a priest in the United States instead of Ireland, and in November of 1853, he was accepted as a seminarian by the new Diocese of Burlington. He finished his theological studies in the Grand Seminary in Montreal, and was ordained on December 20, 1856 by Bishop DeGoesbriand.

Less than a month later, he suddenly found himself pastor of St. Peter's Parish, replacing Father Picart who left for West Rutland. St. Peter's was still the headquarters for many of the southern missions, as well as being a growing, but poor parish with several hundred Catholics. The young Boylan struggled alone to visit all of the missions as well as serve his parish. It wasn't until 1865 that Father John O'Dwyer was assigned to help Father Boylan.

Not content with just taking care of the spiritual welfare of the Catholics he visited, he began to build churches in the various towns. In 1860, St. Alphonsus' Church in Pittsford was built by Father Boylan. He also finished the building of the church in Orwell, which had been started by Father Duglue of Middlebury. In 1866, the beautiful St. Patrick's Church in Wallingford was constructed by Father Boylan. Besides St. Peter's Church, Father Boylan built one more church, which is the one in Mount Holly. Eventually, these missions received their own pastors as more priests became available.

By 1864, old St. Peter's Church on lower Meadow Street had become too small for the steadily increasing number of parishioners. Therefore, it was necessary to make plans for a new and larger church. The "ledge lot", in what was referred to as "Nebraska", was bought from Evelyn Pierpoint in February of 1867 for this purpose. Construction began the following year. Several accounts all tell of how Father Boylan worked alongside the men of the parish in quarrying the stone for the church. He oversaw every detail in the building no matter how small. He inspired and led the parishioners not only in building it, but in raising the necessary funds as well. Between weekly collections, spring picnics, winter bazaars, and private contributions, the parish had no mortgages or debts against the new church when it was completed in March of 1873.

As soon as the church was finished, Father Boylan converted the schoolhouse beside the new church into the rectory, the old church into a school, and the Meadow Street rectory into a convent. Not long after, he built for the Sisters of St. Joseph a new convent across from the church on Convent Avenue. He also built another school for the Parish a few years later. This was and still is the building directly behind the rectory, on the corner of Meadow and River Streets. In 1886, he built St. Mary's School on Green Street (now Killington Avenue), which was the forerunner of the present Christ the King School.

One might easily imagine that Father Boylan missed his calling as an architect for all the building he did. Yet he was a true priest, who faithfully administered the sacraments to his people. After working all day, then hearing confessions, he was often summoned to attend the bedside of the dying, which he never refused. Parishioners came to him for advice in the conduct of their everyday affairs as well. He was loved and respected by the entire town of Rutland also, serving on several commissions and boards. At his funeral, Father Boylan was recognized as a primary force in making Rutland a thriving city, full of spirit and determination.

Such a demanding life began to take its toll. In 1881, Father Boylan became seriously ill. He was bedridden for most of the summer. He eventually recovered, but in 1886, he suffered a stroke, paralyzing his left side. He recovered briefly, but in December of that same year, he suffered a second stroke. He died a few hours after the attack. He was only 56 years old.

It would be impossible to overstate the shock and grief felt by the parishioners and townspeople over the death of this truly apostolic priest. For his funeral on December 7th, most stores and mills closed and over 2,500 people crowded into the church to attend the services. Father Boylan's body was buried in a grave just northwest of the church tower. Later a statue of him was placed over the grave.

THE REVEREND THOMAS J. GAFFNEY

Father Gaffney was born in Edgeworth Town, County Lanford, Ireland in 1843. After elementary school, he first attended Mount Mellerary Seminary in County Waterford in Southern Ireland. To finish off his studies for the priesthood, he travelled to Dublin going first to Maynooth College, then All Hallows Seminary. He graduated with honors at the age of 21, but was unable to be ordained because the canonical age for ordination was then 23.

That same year (1864), Thomas travelled to Burlington, Vermont, where Bishop DeGoesbriand sent him to the Grand Seminary in Montreal to await the time he'd be old enough for ordination. On August 16, 1865, he was ordained Deacon; and on April 9, 1866, he was ordained to the priesthood in the Cathedral in Burlington.

His first assignment was as a curate in St. Peter's Parish. He stayed here for two years under Father Boylan, and then was appointed the first pastor of St. Jerome's Parish in East Dorset, Vermont, with missions in Wallingford, Danby, and Arlington. For nineteen years, he covered this vast parish. Its limits were Shaftsbury to the south, the county line to the east, and Rutland to the west. It had a total of 1,200 Catholics.

He soon replaced the church in East Dorset (a house converted by Father Druan) with a new church and a rectory. He also began a cemetery next to the church. He built a new church for the Catholics in Arlington, and bought an old bank building in Danby for a church there.

In January of 1887, following the death of his close friend Father Boylan, Father Gaffney was appointed pastor of St. Peter's Parish. He was a reluctant man for the job, as indeed any priest would be who had to live under the shadow of such a giant as Father Boylan was. At his first Sunday sermon (perhaps apology would be better), he said: "I appear before you today for the first time as pastor of your souls, and I admit candidly, as a most unworthy successor to a great and holy priest." He continued on in that vein for about fifteen minutes and then concluded his remarks by suggesting the propriety of erecting a monument over Father Boylan's grave and a memorial pipe organ as well.

By early spring, the enthusiastic parishioners had raised over $3,000 for these projects. The organ was installed by July 4th. The monument took a little longer. But it was finished and in place by the spring of '89. Reviewing the parish reports show that Father Gaffney was a very generous man with his money. He constantly used his own savings to make needed repairs or to simply balance the accounts. Often he donated the entire Christmas or Easter collections to the parish. He personally paid $7,500 to build St. Peter's School. In all of his records, he states that upon his death all debts were to be cancelled.

Father Gaffney was also a very active man. He enjoyed boxing, riding fast horses, and travelling extensively to Europe and the Holy Land. He became a leading Rutland citizen, noted for his active interest in building the first Rutland Hospital. He was very strict with his parishioners as well, constantly crusading against drinking, dancing, cardplaying, and just partying in general.

On Sunday, September 2, 1906, Father Gaffney came down with pneumonia. Ten days later he died, much to the dismay and grief of all of Rutland. He was only 64 years old.

THE REVEREND JOHN M. BROWN

Father John Brown was born on February 7, 1861 on a farm in Clarendon, Vermont. He studied for two years at St. Joseph's College in Burlington, and then for one year at the Seminary in Montreal. Bishop DeGoesbriand decided to send him to the Sulpician Fathers in Paris, France, from where he ended up moving first to Innsbruck, Austria and then to the seminary in Munich, Germany. He was ordained to the priesthood at the University of Munich on June 29, 1891.

His first assignment was as a curate to St. Francis de Sales Church in Bennington. However, he was soon transferred to St. Peter's Church to serve as a curate for Father Gaffney. As a young boy, John had served as an altar boy for Father Gaffney at St. Jerome's Church.

After six years as an assistant here, Father Brown was appointed pastor of St. Alphonsus' Parish in Pittsford. He served here for almost ten years, and was noted for liquidating all debts against the parish.

On January 13, 1907, Father Brown was appointed permanent pastor of St. Peter's Parish. He taught himself Italian, to be able to speak with the large number of Italians in the parish. Being very athletic himself, he started the St. Peter's Athletic Association, and bought and fixed up St. Peter's Field.

Father Brown was also remembered as being a keen financier and businessman. In fact, he played the stock market exceptionally well. It was estimated he had a personal fortune of $350,000. The parish did well financially too under Father Brown. Amazingly, during the depression, St. Peter's Parish had a savings account with $65,000! However, Father Brown kept the parish on a tight budget, making only the most necessary repairs. He and the rectory lived very austere as well. Upon his death, his entire fortune became the property of the Parish. This money was used by Father Joyce to completely renovate the church.

Father Brown was stricken in March of 1946 by a severe heart attack. He died on April 14, 1946, and was buried in Calvary Cemetery. His brother, The Reverend Thomas Brown, is buried alongside.

ROBERT F. JOYCE BISHOP OF BURLINGTON

Father Robert Joyce was born in Proctor, Vermont in 1896. He graduated from the University of Vermont in 1917 with Phi Beta Kappa Honors. After six years of study under the Sulpicians in the Seminary of Philosophy and the Grand Seminary in Montreal, he received the degree of licentiate in Theology. He was ordained to the priesthood on May 27, 1923 in Burlington by Bishop Joseph Rice.

His first assignment was to St. Michael's Parish in Brattleboro. He then moved to St. Francis' Parish in Bennington. He became the administrator of St. Paul's Parish in Manchester for awhile, before being appointed principal of Cathedral High School in Burlington. In 1932, he was made pastor of St. John's Parish in Northfield.

In 1943, Father Joyce was granted a leave of absence to serve as chaplain in the U.S. Army. He spent most of his stint in the United States with the exception of one year in England. In May of 1946, he was discharged with the rank of Major. Almost immediately he was appointed pastor of St. Peter's Church in Rutland.

While in Rutland, Father Joyce undertook a major renovation of the interior of the church. The money left by Father Brown was used for this purpose.

Father Joyce held many diocesan offices during his stay at St. Peter's. He was a pre-synodal judge of the diocesan marriage court, Director of the Holy Name Society, and District Director of the National Council of Catholic Women. He was also Spiritual Director of the Newman Clubs of U.V.M. and Norwich University.

On July 8, 1954, Father Joyce was elected Titular Bishop of Citium and appointed Auxiliary Bishop to Bishop Ryan. On January 2, 1957, he was appointed Bishop of Burlington.

In 1963, he was elected to St. Michael's College's Delta Epsilon Sigma Catholic Honor Society. Over the years, he has received honorary degrees from U.V.M., St. Michael's College, and Norwich University. He also attended all four sessions of Vatican II in Rome.

Bishop Joyce resigned as Ordinary of the Diocese on December 18, 1971. Since then, he has lived at the St. Joseph Home in Burlington, continuing to be an active priest helping out in various parishes around the state. He also spends several months a year helping out in the Diocese of Miami, Florida.

MONSIGNOR THOMAS H. CONNOR

PASTOR, ST. PETER CHURCH

RIGHT REVEREND WILLIAM A. CROWLEY

Another native son of St. Peter's Parish returned to be its seventh pastor in a little over 100 years. William Crowley was born in Rutland on April 8, 1900. After attending St. Peter's School, he went to Montreal College (LePetit Seminaire), the Seminary of Philosophy, and Grand Seminary. He was ordained on May 29, 1926 in the Cathedral at Burlington by the most Reverend Joseph Rice.

After serving as an assistant at St. Michael's Parish in Brattleboro and St. Paul's Parish in Barton, he was named administrator of St. Rose of Lima Parish in South Hero and later pastor of St. Louis' Parish in Highgate, Vermont.

While at St. Louis' Parish, Bishop Brady asked Father Crowley to attend the Catholic University to take a degree in Education. After returning from Washington in 1943, Bishop Brady appointed him the Superintendent of Schools for the Diocese, a post he held for seventeen years. He resided at St. Joseph's Home for the aged on North Prospect Street in Burlington.

During those earlier years in Burlington, he also was instructing religion classes at Trinity College, courses at St. Michael's College, and psychology courses for the student nurses at the DeGoesbriand and Fanny Allen Hospitals.

At one time or another, he was a member of the executive board of the National Catholic Education Committee, a member of the elementary department school board of that association, and co-author of a book, "These Are Our Schools".

After the death of Monsignor McGarry on December 15, 1951, Monsignor Crowley was named to succeed him at St. Stephen's Parish in Winooski, Vermont.

In March of 1957, Bishop Joyce named him pastor of his native parish, St. Peter's, in Rutland. For eight years, Monsignor Crowley presided over the temporal and spiritual affairs of this parish. His unfailing kindness, his cheerful hospitality towards his brother priests, his guidance and advice to parishioners and priests, his willingness to take on any task were the marks of this brilliant priest.

Early in February, he became ill, and was taken to the DeGoesbriand Hospital in Burlington. He died there on March 5, 1965. He was buried in Calvary Cemetery, at the foot of the large Celtic Cross beside the grave of Father Gaffney, who was the pastor of St. Peter's when Monsignor was born.

MONSIGNOR THOMAS H. CONNOR

Reverend Thomas H. Connor was born in Proctor, Vermont on October 25, 1909. After graduating from Proctor High School in 1927, he enrolled in the two year pre-seminary course at St. Michael's College. He completed studies in Philosophy and Theology at the Grand Seminary in Montreal. With Father Francis McDonough, he was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Alfred Deschamps in St. James Cathedral, Montreal, on June 15, 1935.

After a temporary assignment as chaplain of St. Joseph's Orphanage in Burlington, he was assigned by Bishop Rice as assistant pastor of St. Michael's Church in Brattleboro and principal of St. Michael's High School. In 1936, following a brief assignment at Cathedral Parish in Burlington, he came to St. Peter's, where for the next eight years, he served as assistant to Monsignor John Brown.

In 1939, he was delegated by Bishop Brady to organize the Boy Scout Program in the parishes of the Diocese. Two years later, he undertook the establishment of the Catholic Youth Organization (CYO), which he directed until 1956.

In 1944, Father Connor was assigned as pastor of St. Patrick's Parish in Wallingford, which included St. Mary of the Hills Church in Mt. Holly as a mission. In 1960, upon the resignation of Father Jeremiah O'Brien, he was assigned to St. John the Baptist Parish in Castleton, where he also served as chaplain to the Catholic students at Castleton College. In March of 1965, the pastorate of St. Peter's Church became vacant due to the death of Monsignor William Crowley, and Father Connor was assigned as pastor of St. Peter's on April 4 of that year.

Upon the termination of the Second Vatican Council in 1965, Father Connor was designated as chairman of the newly-formed Diocesan Pastoral Council, through which councils comprised of Clergy, Religious and Laity were organized in each Deanery and Parish of the Diocese.

With the retirement of Monsignor John Kennedy as pastor of Christ the King and Dean of the Rutland County Clergy, Father Connor succeeded him as Dean and as a member of the Diocesan Board of Consultors. On March 22, 1970, Father Connor was invested as a Domestic Prelate of Pope Paul VI with the title of Monsignor.

During his pastorate at St. Peter's, the parish planned the observance of the 100th Anniversary of the Dedication of the Church, which was dedicated on June 29, 1873. In addition to a program of spiritual renewal, the parish undertook the physical improvement of the century-old church. This included the construction of the St. Joseph Entrance, the installation of a new steeple, and the renovation of the church interior in compliance with the liturgical norms of the Second Vatican Council. These improvements were completed before the Centennial Dedication ceremony, presided over by Bishop John Marshall on July 1, 1973.

On October 6, 1975, the entire State of Vermont was shocked by the gruesome head-on collision on Route 7, which killed Monsignor Connor and five others. His untimely death left St. Peter's Parish in a quandry for a long time. He was a priest well known and loved for his christian kindness, generosity, and understanding. On the first anniversary of his death, the large playground on lower Meadow Street was dedicated in his memory, and a simple monument and plaque were erected.

THE REVEREND JOSEPH A. LIVELY

The Reverend Joseph Lively, son of Mr. & Mrs. Mederic Lively, was born on April 25, 1929 at the family farm in Heath, Massachusetts. He attended local public grammar school and Arms Academy, the area public high school in Shelburne Falls, Massachusetts. After high school, he worked a year for Gordon and Sutton Contractors in North Adams, and one year for the New England Power Company in Readsboro, Vermont.

He entered St. Michael's College in 1949 as a Pre-Theology student for the Diocese of Burlington. He attended two scholastic years at St. Michael's after which he entered St. John's Seminary for Philosophy and Theology. He received his call to the priesthood from the Apostolic Delegate, since the See of Burlington was vacant with the death of Bishop Edward Ryan.

Father Lively was ordained to the priesthood on February 2, 1957 by Auxiliary Bishop Robert Joyce. He served a brief three months as a curate at St. Thomas' Parish in Underhill Center. He was then assigned as a curate at Christ the King Parish in Rutland, where he served for a little over six years. While there he got to know the area and the people well, a factor which was to be helpful later. In 1963, he was assigned to St. Mark's Parish in Burlington. In May of 1968, he received his first pastorate at Sacred Heart of Jesus Parish in Troy, Vermont. He had St. Ignatius Church in Lowell as a mission as well.

He served there until January 29, 1974, at which time he was appointed pastor of St. Ann's Church in Milton, Vermont (Milton was his mother's home town and where she was married).

Father Lively received his assignment as pastor of St. Peter's Parish in January of 1976.

CHAPTER VIII

THE LORETTO HOME

One of Father Boylan's dreams that was only realized after his lifetime was a Catholic old ladies' home. The reason for such a home was the number of aged Irish ladies, who after years of service as maids and cooks in some of Rutland's wealthier families, had to retire with no place to go. Also, many widows needed a place to spend their declining years. Being an admirer of Father Boylan, The Reverend Tom Gaffney decided to carry out this dream of his predecessor.

In September of 1901, Father Gaffney purchased a house lot on Meadow Street from Frederick and Johanna Sabourin for $250. It wasn't until the spring of 1903 that he moved the house from the lot and began construction. Mr. Frank Conniff was the general contractor for the four-story brick building. Mr. Patrick Cummings of South Street was awarded the contract for the bricklaying job.

By the first of October, the exterior of the building and the interior lathing was completed. During the winter, new gas plumbing and fixtures were installed, as well as radiators for heat. "Speaking tubes" were installed in the halls on every floor. A dumb-waiter type elevator, holding perhaps four or five people, was built, running from the basement to the top floor.

The kitchen and laundry were in the basement, with the dining room, chapel, reception room and parlor occupying the first floor. Both the second and third floors contained private rooms - two large dormitories separated by a long hallway down the length of the building. These could be divided into private rooms later if it was judged necessary.

Much of the building was paid for by the parish. There were many private contributors as well though who weren't parishioners, but were interested in the institution. The original building was planned to house fifty people, and was to be run by the Sisters of St. Joseph. Father Gaffney had deeded over the entire Home to the Sisters in 1903 for the sum of $1. He, at that time, gave them over $11,000 in stocks and cash as a trust fund to use the interest in running the home.

By the early summer of 1904, the Loretto Home was open for guests. There seems to be no information of who the first guests were or what it actually cost to keep the ladies there. But a flat fee of $300 was required and then the guest was taken care of for the rest of her life. Sister Mary Bernardine was put in charge of the home. She had two assistants to help her as well as postulates and novices.

The number of guests never filled the home in its early years. Even by 1920, there still were only eighteen to twenty guests. This number stayed constant until the 1940's in fact. By then each guest was assessed an initial fee of $1,000.00 and a $10.00 monthly service charge.

In 1942 due to the fact the sisters couldn't continue to finance the home any longer, Vermont Catholic Charities took over the financial management of it. The office soon began referring many people from around the State to the Loretto Home. Catholic Charities also got Vermont Old Age pensions for the needy guests. That same year Sister Gabriel was put in charge of the day to day running of the Home.

In 1948 a new motorized elevator was installed. The old dumb-waiter was closed off. Vermont Catholic Charities paid for most of the work, but a sizeable donation by Miss Josie Hoy of Rutland helped. During the early '50's the new chapel, dining room, and guest rooms were built.

The Sisters of St. Joseph decided to give up control of the Home, probably to devote more time to teaching. The Home was leased to Vermont Catholic Charities for 100 years, and the Daughters of Charity of the Sacred Heart of Newport took charge of providing care for the guests.

In the late '60's, Mrs. Anna Mathews left $135,000.00 to the Home. With this money, and some from Catholic Charities, the Anna Mathews Annex was added to the Home, just north of the old building. There are two enclosed walkways connecting the old and the new buildings. The Annex contains guest rooms, an elevator, and a large lounge. Guests now pay a monthly stipend to stay at the Loretto Home.

In the summer of 1970 a new elevator was installed in the old building. This was made possible by a bequest in the will of the late Minnie Ryan, who was a guest for several years in the home.

The name "Loretto Home" is taken from the feast of the 'Translation of the Holy House of Loretto', celebrated in the Church Calendar on December 10th. It commemorated the translation of house where the Incarnation in Nazareth took place in Loretto, Italy, in 1295.

CHAPTER IX

PARISH SOCIETIES

In the annals of St. Peter's Parish history, there are numerous societies, groups, and organizations. It is obvious that the parish was the focal point of the lives of many of the parishioners. They came together not only to worship, but to play, to learn, and to satisfy their need for personal growth and development.

The early parishioners were almost all Irishmen, and being generally common laborers, were typically a rough and bawdy bunch. The first societies thus had a two-fold purpose: to encourage the habit of virtue and the practice of religion and to combat the evils of the day, i.e., drinking, fighting, and other unsavory activities.

This chapter is an attempt to briefly describe the various societies that have or still do exist in the parish.

YOUNG MEN'S CATHOLIC LITERARY UNION

The Young Men's Catholic Literary Union was organized by Father Boylan in 1881. The stated purpose was for the educational, literary, and social advancement of its members. Besides regular monthly meetings for guest speakers and general discussion, the organization held several evening entertainments a year. These consisted of vocal and instrumental music, readings, and recitations. By 1882, the Literary Union had fifty members. Their meeting place at first was the Chaffee Hall, but they soon moved to the Armory Hall on Merchants Row.

In 1887, the organization, now called simply the Young Men's Catholic Union, opened a gymnasium and clubroom on the third floor of St. Peter's School on Meadow Street. The gym was purportedly quite popular, being used every evening by the Union members.

Father Gaffney, in early 1891, sought to re-establish the social and intellectual function of the Union, which must have lapsed over the years. He also moved to tighten up membership in the Union by requiring a two-thirds vote by the active members on anybody applying for membership. Plans were made for a library, reading room, and more entertainment. A site on Merchants Row was chosen for the Union headquarters, suggesting that the earlier meetings must have been discontinued. This reinvigorated group, now called the Catholic Young Men's Union, soon had over 100 members. By 1893, a cardroom, billiard room, a gymnasium, and bathrooms had been added to the Merchants Row headquarters.

The activities of the Y.M.C.U. ranged from picnics, dances, operas, guest speakers, fund raising benefits, and even a baseball team. Special trips were arranged for members to travel to different cities and to national union conventions. By the early 1900's, the Y.M.C.U. began a rapid decline in popularity. It seems to have lost members to other Catholic organizations, such as the Knights of Columbus, Catholic Order of Foresters, and the St. Peter's Athletic Association.

By 1904, after fifteen years of activity, the Young Men's Catholic Union seems to have just ceased to exist in Rutland.

ST. PETER'S CADET CORPS

Following the declaration of war in 1917, the upper grades in St. Peter's School decided to form a Cadet Corps to practice marching formation drills and manual of arms exercises. Their Drill Master was Harold Radigan, a Norwich University graduate. The Cadets took part in many local parades for four or five years.

The Cadet Corps was revived in the mid-twenties as a winter exercise for the boys. They drilled in St. Peter's third floor hall, wearing the old uniforms which were grey trimmed with black. They also had summer camp-outs on Lake Bomoseen. For a couple of years, the Corps again participated in local parades and celebrations. It folded though for good by the end of the decade, never to be heard of again.

ST. PETER'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

While a curate at St. Peter's Church, the Reverend John McGarry organized the young boys of the parish into football, baseball, and basketball teams. These teams developed into what was called the St. Peter's Athletic Association. In those days, (1906-7) there was no St. Peter's Field, so the boys played on Baxter's Lot, in the city park, or on Green's Hill, the field just west of the General Electric plant, at the foot of Crampton Avenue.

To raise money for uniforms and equipment, the boys of the Association began in 1908 to put on a minstrel show in St. Peter's School Hall. They also had their own clubrooms at 194 1/2 Columbian Avenue, and they held annual sports banquets at the Bardwell Hotel. They had regular meetings besides the team practices and games, and elected officers.

Evidently high school athletics were not highly organized in Rutland at this time. The Association arranged to play various high school teams, town teams, and even college teams occasionally. The Association, in 1915, finally got their own field, when St. Peter's Field on lower River Street was opened for the first time. The field was owned by the Sisters of St. Joseph, but the men of the Parish themselves laid out the baseball diamond, rolled cinder oval track, football field, and tennis courts. Father Brown, in 1917, bought the field from the good Sisters for the sum of $2,000.00.

Using their popular minstrel show to raise the necessary funds, the field was further improved by leveling the land, and erecting new bleachers, which seated 600. The curates at St. Peter's were instrumental in keeping the association and the field going. Between 1914 and 1919, Fathers Edward Howard, Thomas McMahon, and Peter Nolin worked diligently with the boys. It seems though that the war effort sapped the enthusiasm of the Association, because nothing is mentioned of it again after 1919.

FATHER MATHEW TOTAL ABSTINENCE SOCIETY

In 1852, the State of Vermont passed its first Prohibition Act, outlawing the manufacturing, sale, or use of any alcohol for human consumption. County commissioners appointed town agents who could sell alcohol only for medicinal or mechanical use. Needless to say, several town agents participated in some shady dealings with their customers when it came to selling their "medicinal" liquor. There also was a brisk smuggling trade of booze into Vermont. This half century of what was called "The Great Thirst" saw many Vermont farmers and townspeople distilling their hard cider into a heady potion.

Despite the prohibition, the parishioners of St. Peter's, of whom many were hard drinking and pugnacious Irishmen, could easily obtain hard liquor, wine or beer. The results were typical Saturday nights of drunken debauchery. From stories of those early years, it seems that the covered wooden bridge on West Street was the most popular spot for many bloody brawls.

Father Boylan, the pastor of St. Peter's, reportedly was called out on many Saturday nights to break up the fisticuffs with his stout wooden cane. An ardent temperance advocate, he could see the damage done to health, family, and work by the drunkenness that raged around him. In an effort to combat this evil, he started the Father Mathew Juvenile Total Abstinence Society. At a high mass on St. Patrick's Day, 1871, he gave the pledge to over 200 boys and young men. He also blessed a banner they were to use in parades and processions.

For several years thereafter, we find mention of this organization, mostly in connection with the May Crownings, and the several processions preceding the dedication of the new church.

It seems that the Bishops later took up the cause of total abstinence from the "demon rum", by making it a part of their confirmation services. It is remembered that Bishop Rice, Bishop Brady, Bishop Ryan, and Bishop Joyce all followed the practice of asking the confirmees to make the pledge of abstinence. Bishop John Marshall has not used this in his confirmations, probably because of its general ineffectiveness.

Father Theobald Mathew, O.M. Capuchin, was the Apostle of Temperance in Ireland. He began his crusade against drinking there in 1838, where it spread to New England with its large Irish population. The movement is still strong in Ireland today.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY

In November of 1903, a Father McKenna conducted a three day retreat at St. Peter's for the men of the Parish. About 500 men attended the retreat, which was to promote a devotion and reverence to the name of Jesus Christ, and to dissuade them from the common practice of cursing, swearing, and blasphemy.

This retreat marked the beginning of the Holy Name Society in the parish, which was just for men. The Society actually preceded the National Holy Name Society by some six years. The members used to sit as a body on the left side aisle during mass, and receive communion together. They had a series of prayers to recite together after mass as well.

The Society continued quietly for many years, until Father Gerald Buckley in 1948 was appointed Spiritual Director of the Society. A curate at St. Peter's, he immediately started an enthusiastic membership campaign for the Society. He attempted to upgrade the program to make it attractive to both young and old men. In three short years he brought the membership up to 770 men, and had a schedule that was active both spiritually and socially. There were meetings, movies, communion breakfasts, newsletters, State Rallies, and annual banquets. High masses were sung for all members serving in the armed services, and those that had died in the service.

The Society also began to get into sports a lot, as might be expected. They held sports banquets for the athletes of Mt. St. Joseph, at which they gave out the Monsignor Brown Memorial Trophy for outstanding sportsmanship. There was also a junior Holy Name Basketball team which did quite well, winning two state championships in three years.

The Society slipped into decline as personnel and the years brought about a decrease in membership. The men who led it left for other activities and interests. As rapidly as it had risen in popularity, it dropped into obscurity, all of its activities coming to a stop.

SODALITY

By far the oldest of all the parish societies, the Sodality has weathered the test of time so that today, over a hundred years later, it continues to be a popular women's organization. The roots of the Sodality begin in 1865, with a group called the Catholic Ladies. It appears that Father Boylan organized the ladies of the parish primarily to hold annual fairs and bazaars to raise money for the construction of the new St. Peter's Church. For many years, the services of the Catholic Ladies helped raise several thousand dollars for the building fund.

With the completion of the church, the women changed their title to the "Ladies Society". This was in 1873. But in the May Crowning ceremony of 1871, there was a reference to the "Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary", which was made up only of young girls. By 1875 there were three Sodalities in the parish. There was the Sodality of the Holy Infant, Sodality of the Holy Angels, and the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Altogether there were 150 young girls and adult women of the parish in these groups. A consolidation must have occurred soon after, because following 1888 all parish reports refer simply to the "Ladies Sodality".

The Sodality has traditionally been the workhorse of the parish. The members visit the sick, elderly, and shut-ins of the parish. They have an altar subcommittee, which takes care of the church decorations and linens. They've been crucial in running annual suppers and fairs. The Sodality does a variety of other activities, as well as being at the disposal of the pastor whenever he needs help on special projects.

The Sodality has also been in the forefront of the Ecumenical Movement in Rutland. As members of the Church Women United, they have, among other things, had an annual clothing drive in the fall. They also conduct regular well-baby clinics at the Rutland Hospital.

THE MONSIGNOR CONNORS YOUTH MINISTRY

Beginning in September of 1974, a Catholic youth organization was started in the Parish through the efforts of Father Richard Pinard and Ronald and Marianne Barrett. The group of high school students, under the enthusiastic leadership of the Barretts, held regular meetings, attended the annual C.Y.O. Congress in Burlington, and participated in ongoing Parish activities. Recently, the group changed their name to the Monsignor Connors Youth Ministry Organization, to reflect a new emphasis of youth ministering to youth. The program is still in a formative stage, but the close relationship the members enjoy shows the strong potential for success of the Youth Ministry concept. The group is further blessed with the addition of Dr. Frank and Colleen D'Auria, a young married couple new to the parish, who have been generous with their time and talents as adult members of the Youth Ministry team.
